

Mountain Lions 101

Saturday, September 15, 2018 from 2:30 – 4 pm

Presented by Robin Parks, Mountain Lion Foundation

Mountain Lions...Cougars...Pumas...Panthers – these are all names for the same animal!

Learn about basic mountain lion biology, general safety tips, how to protect pets and livestock, and address “myths & misinformation” that surround these animals. The mountain lion population is in decline in many areas. There is precious little time to change their life’s course, but education can help.

Mr. Robin Parks is a life-long admirer of the great cats and began volunteer work at animal sanctuaries in California and elsewhere in 1999 where he first encountered captive mountain lions. This led Parks to the Mountain Lion Foundation (MLF), a national nonprofit organization dedicated to protecting mountain lions and their habitat, and he has been a field volunteer on many MLF projects. As a former 25 year career investigator for the Naval Criminal Investigative Service; retiring in 2004, he is very much involved in reaching out to law enforcement agencies who are so often the first responders to mountain lion incidents.
